

OPTIMALLY CONNECTED BY RAIL AND BARGE

Hutchison Ports Venlo is the extended gate on the Dutch - German border. The inland terminal is strategically situated, right at the heart of the no. 1 logistics hotspot in the Netherlands. Germany's Ruhr area is a stone's throw away: Dusseldorf is a mere 55-kilometre drive, Cologne 90 kilometres. Hutchison Ports Venlo comprises both a rail terminal and a barge terminal. Several daily trains and numerous barges a week connect Hutchison Ports Venlo with the deep-sea terminals and (empty) depots in Rotterdam. Hutchison Ports Venlo is also connected with Antwerp by barge.

WIDE RANGE OF SERVICES

Hutchison Ports Venlo offers customers a wide range of services, such as the short-term and long-term storage of full containers, the on-demand collection and delivery of containers at the customer and an empty container depot, including facilities for maintenance and repair. Well-trained employees ensure that services are rendered in a reliable, professional and safe manner. German is an obvious second language at the inland terminal. Paperless transport between the deep-sea terminals of ECT in Rotterdam and the inland terminal in Venlo is also possible.
